Our County Contests.

We have taken no part in our county canvass for the Legislature, as between the three several gentlemen now before the people for their suffrages.

Nor, indeed, do we, or should we intend to do so. However much we regret to see so many aspirants for the honor of a seat in that body, we yet have an abiding faith in the good and true men of our party, and believe that neither of the gentlemen who now seek the place, would refuse to sacrifice personal preference, in order to bring about harmony in our ranks—and triumphantly elect a sound Democrat to represent us in the next General Assembly of the State. Those who pretend to speak for the Republican party, assure us that there will be no candidate on that ticket. Beyond this mere assertion we have no proof. They may, or may not, speak "by the ear."

It might be too late for us to hold even an informal meeting, for the purpose of placing some special candidate upon the track, should our opponents conclude, at the "eleventh hour," to give us a race by one of their party; or, in case they should take up some one of the three men now before the people. We do not wish to dictate to you, fellow-citizens, but as a party organ, having the best interests of the Democratic party at heart, we simply warn you, in time, against the dangers which threaten us alike, and which might be the means of elevating one to a seat in our next Legislature who would be, to say the least of it, obnoxious to the large majority of our people. However, we are, comparatively, a stranger in your midst, in one sense, but not an alien to your best interests. All that we can do, in our humble way, shall be done most cheerfully, and to the best of our ability. If we are deceived in our surmises, we are deceived honestly, but we warn you now—to be on your guard—for the watchman who sleeps deserves not his position.

One of the best and most sensible addresses which it has ever been our good fortune to read, was delivered by that able and distinguished metropolitan editor, Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal before the Tennessee Press Association, recently. We regret that our space does not allow us to lay it before our readers in extenso. Aside from its interest to country, or "rural" journalists, it has a decided interest to all who read the rural or city papers. Plain, outspoken, it drives right home to the mind of every reader, and makes each one of us feel better of himself after its perusal. Our advice to our readers is if you have a chance read that address and judge for yourselves.

McCREARY AND HARLAN.—From all portions of the State we receive the highest eulogiums upon our gallant candidate for Governor, Col. McCreary does not only "hold his own" with his wily adversary, but has actually got the decided advantage of Gen. Harlan upon the stump. Therefore let those who have been led to believe that our candidate, from want of experience, would "go down" under the experienced blows of the Radical nominee, quiet their fears. So far McCreary has shown himself a very Bayard, and, as "practice makes perfect," he will, more and more, give the easily-haired advocate of centralization and despotism all he can do to keep his head above water.

THE BOYLE NOMINEE.—On Saturday last, the Boyle County Democracy met in convention at a convenient point, and the entire county was fully represented. A number of citizens came to the meeting from each precinct, and, after full consultation, they nominated for the Legislature Col. J. Warren Grigsby, with great unanimity. This was a most admirable selection. Col. Grigsby is one of the most accomplished gentlemen in that county—a fine and ripe scholar, and one who would reflect honor upon the State. At present he is absent in Virginia, but all his friends feel sure that on his return, he will, as he should, accept the nomination.

THE Commercial, of Louisville, pretends to believe that the "Boss" Congressman of Kentucky, Hon. James B. Beck, is not the sort of metal out of which could be moulded, an United States Senator. We do not wonder that the entire Radical Press of the Union are opposed to him, because Beck, as a member of the Lower House of Congress, proved to be a thorn in the pillow of Radicalism, and, if elected to the Senate, he would be a whole bundle of thorns to the rings, rogues, thieves, and other rascals, who have been, for years, carrying on their infamous work!

THE Shelby Courier, which departed this life last week, took occasion in the agonizing throes of its dissolution to fling some of its venom at one innocent head. We might retort, but there would be no honor in kicking a man already kicked down. We will, however, say that the "green-eyed monster" jealousy has been the bane of more men and newspapers than were ever dreamed of by the late Shelby Courier.

Let the people bear in mind that at the next August election they will be called on to vote for or against a Convention to remodel our present State Constitution. You will have several years in which to reflect upon the matter, even though a majority agrees to call a convention, as it takes about five years to ratify it, from the time the question is voted upon. All parties agree that a revision is greatly needed.

GOLD.—The reported finding of gold in the Black Hills has for some time been doubted, but it is now definitely settled that the precious metal is there in vast quantities and of a superior quality. Miners at work there find from five to twenty-five dollars in a "pan." Of course this good news will cause thousands to rush thither—many to come back dead broke—but a few famously rich.

ALEXANDER'S SALE.—At a sale of the stock of thoroughbreds at Woodburn Stock Farm in Woodford county, the other day, higher prices were attained than for several years past. The aggregate amount of sales was over $40,000. This is said to have been one of the largest and most interesting sales of thoroughbreds in this State for years.

THE Louisville Commercial flew into a passion over a few wholesome truths which were uttered by the Hon. Jas. B. Beck on our last county court day in Stanford. Radicalism could never endure to have its sins of omission and commission exposed. Hence the exceptions taken by our distinguished adversary. "Peace, be still!"

THE KENTUCKY BAPTISTS.—The Baptists of this State are making every necessary preparation to celebrate their Centennial. There will be a meeting at Lebanon on the 1st day of July next—preliminary to it, and everybody is invited to come. Speeches, good dinner, music, &c.—without money and without price.

In Louisville, over 200 Dutchmen have petitioned one of their native countrymen to make a race for a seat in the next Legislature of the State. About two-thirds of the names of the petitioners could not be pronounced by a native American.

MOSS AND GOODLOE, Democratic and Radical candidates for Attorney General of Kentucky, are having lively debates in the Southern Kentucky towns, and Mr. Moss, our candidate, is giving Mr. Goodloe all he can stand up to.

The Engineers have completed the surveys of Kanawha river, and the work of improvement, for which the last Congress appropriated $300,000, will be advertised for letting next week.

BECKER is through at last with his baraque. He has sued the Court, however, to admit the newly found evidence—and the Judge has it under advisement.

By a proper amendment to our State Constitution, the cost of Legislation could be decreased at least one-third, perhaps one-half.

We learn that three or four well-known firms of Somerset, Ky., have suspended. Too much credit did the business.

There was a general jail delivery at Lexington on the night of the 23d. Seven prisoners escaped—and are still at large.

BOSS TWEED is still in Ludlow street jail. The probability is, however, that he will give that $300,000 bail.

THERE is a dangerous counterfeit reported in the First National Bank of Canton, Ill. It is of the $5 issue.

YESTERDAY was St. John's day. It was observed by all the Masonic Lodges in the United States.

Baptist Centennial Celebration at Harrodsburg.

The Baptist Centennial at Harrodsburg, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., passed off with perfect success and satisfaction to all. Long before the time appointed for the exercises to begin, the beautiful grounds—"Payne's Woods"—were remarkably populous in their appearance—being filled with beauty and intelligence of the land.—At 10 o'clock, the vast concourse was called to order by Rev. Mr. Harvey, of the Harrodsburg Church—whereupon, nominations for officers of the meeting were in order. The venerable Dr. Vaughan was duly selected as moderator of the meeting, with the Rev. Dr. Helm Asst.—and Mr. Bruce, of the Advocate, being chosen Secretary. The services were opened with prayer. Mr. Harvey then read a paper containing a very concise history of the dissemination of religion in Kentucky—which was very pertinent to the occasion, and very able. The Rev. Mr. Harris, of Louisville, was then introduced. He is the great grandson of Father William Hickman, a pioneer preacher of this State, and dear to the hearts of all. Mr. Harris' remarks were "short but sweet," and received with pleasure by all. The next speaking was from Father Vaughan—who in a grand retrospection, related some very instructive incidents in his past career, suggestive of the unswerving seal of the Old Fathers—and impressed all with the thought—that although full of trials and troubles, it was certainly pleasant to start for Christ in this "dark and bloody ground." Next Dr. Manly in a most delightful effort, explained the object of the meeting to be the Centennial Celebration of the beginning of the spreading of God's gospel—not only in America—but especially in Kentucky. He announced the desire of the people to be to erect a monument to this great work—which would not decay with time—as marble, brass or iron obelisks will do—but to erect a perpetual memorial which will last the span of time—and that this should be an emblem in some place set apart to the training the hearts and minds of the coming generations. Dr. Burrows then, in a most masterly manner, continued the theme upon which Dr. Manly had just spoken, and then elaborated the idea of "Religious Liberty"—the essential individuality of Church and State—and the indubitable fact that to which all credit is due for the perfect "Religious Liberty" in this country—and there is not another country under the abiding heavens where this privilege is enjoyed. There are countries where toleration is found. But toleration implies a power to compel—hence, the idea of liberty is lost. After a prayer by the Rev. Mr. Dudley, the meeting adjourned to dinner. To say the dinner was splendid, and did credit to the already wide spread reputation of Mercer county house-keepers, will be but a very poor expression of my feelings. Upon resuming the services, prayer by Rev. Mr. T. Vaughan. Then Rev. Dr. Harlan addressed the assembly in a very pleasant speech, and it was happily received.—Dr. Broadus was then introduced, and in his incomparable style—elucidated the subject—"Education,"—as it was never the pleasure of the writer to hear—even approximately. To attempt an epitomized description would be useless— suffice the glowing distinction between Secular Colleges and denominational Colleges—which are as different as black and white. The one beneath the notice of man of fitting—the other an undertaking which should be encouraged and upheld by all. To stop without noticing the music would be very foreign to my feelings. It was most delightful—and displayed taste in the selections, as well as ability to execute on the part of the choir. Withal, we are glad we were there.

Lines on the Death of Little John.
C. R. BARNES.

He's gone, and we miss him, no more shall the sound
Of his dear little footsteps be heard on the ground;
His sweet boyish prattle we shall hear no more—
"Till we meet him beyond on the bright shining shore."

He's gone, and we miss him—oh, and was the day
That God in his goodness did't take him away,
To wait his pure spirit in peace to the sky
To swell the bright chorus of Angels on high.

He's gone, and we miss him—yet 'tis sweet still to know
He's free from all sorrow, from care and from woe,
And though we lament him—and weep for him here
With him all is bright and happy up there.

He's gone, and we miss him, yet do not despair,
He's gone up to heaven 'mid angels to share,
We know that he's happy with Jesus above,
Secure from all sorrow and safe in his love.

For we'll meet him, dear Lord, one day, thou'rt gone from our sight,
But we know we shall meet thee in glory up there,
And though the soul parting our hearts gave each pain,
We could not, no, we could not recall thee again.
